PASO HERALD

Saturday, July 8, 1911.

ablished April, 1881. The El Paso Herald includes also, by absorption and succession. The Daily News, The Telegraph, The Telegram, The Tribune, The Graphic, The Sun, The Advertiser, The Independent, The Journal, The Republican, The Bulletin.

MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS AND AMER. NEWSP. PUB! ISHERS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PASSOCIATION OF THE PASSOCIATION

Dedicated to the service of the people, that no good cause shall lack a champion, and that evil shall not thrive unopposed.

The Daily Herald is issued six days a week and the Weekly Herald is published every Thursday, at El Paso, Texas; and the Sunday Mail Edition is also sent to Weekly Subscribers.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

Daily Herald, per mouth, 60c; per year, $7.00. Weekly Herald, per year, $2.04.

The Daily Herald is delivered by carriers in El Paso, East El Paso, Fort Briss and Towne, Texas, and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, at 60 cents a month.

A subscriber desiring the address on his paper changed will please state
In his communication both the old and the new address.

Subscribers failing to get The Herald promptly should call at the office or seephone No. 215 before $:30 p. m. All complaints will receive prompt atten-

POREIGN BUSINESS OFFICES. The John Budd Co., Brunswick Building, New York; Tribune Building, Chicago, Ill., and Chemical Building, St. Leuis, Mo.

The Herald bases contracts on a guarantee of more than twice the circulation of any other El Pase, Arizona, New Mexico or West Texas pa-per. Daily average stoccoding 18,000.

HERALD TRATS ELING AGENTS. Persons solicited to subscribe for The Herald should not pay money to anyone unless he can show that he is legally author-ized by the El Pasc Herald.

Express Company Monopoly

TIS time the United States government were taking steps to abolish the monopoly of the express companies as small package carriers and take this business into the hands of the national government through the postal service where it properly belongs. The government is well equipped to handle package carrying traffic of all kinds, and the expenses of the postal service to cover this business would not add materially to the cost of operation, while it would greatly increase the revenue and afford service to the public that is now withheld or granted on terms often exorbitant.

The government now makes a maximum postal weight of four pounds and the tailroads make a minimum freight weight of 100 pounds, leaving the express companies almost the exclusive control of all the package carrying business of the country. A parcels post is a legitimate development of the postal service of the country, and had it not been for the powerful opposition of the express companies it would have come long ago and would have proved itself to be a public benefaction of great value. The opposition here and there among the merchants to the parcels post idea is due more than anything else to the deliberate agitation of the express companies in their own behalf.

It is a mistaken idea that a development of the parcels post would work injury to merchants in small towns; such an argument would apply equally well to letter postage, good roads, interurban electric lines, or any other improved methods

As a general principle, it may be safely asserted that anything which increases the facility of transportation or intercourse confers general benefit, while anything which interposes obstacles to free movement of traffic and communication is in effect a general tax, does no good to anybody, and hampers normal development of small business and small towns as well as large.

Cleaning day for the whole city pays in lives, it pays in health conserved, and sharply,

Tax Inequality

MAYOR WRIGHT of Houston in his annual report says, "The actual value of real and personal property in the corporate limits of Houston is about $250,000,000, and yet we only assess same $62,000,000, for the simple reason that we do not need more revenue for current expenses."

If we had a state equalization board, this inequality could not exist. Houston is not bearing her fair share of state taxes. By the declaration of her mayor she assesses on about 25 percent value, while El Paso, for instance, assesses at about 50 percent value; in other words, El Paso is paying twice as much state tax in proportion as Houston is paying.

The law actually requires "full rendition," but no city or county complies with it. The main thing is that there shall be a degree of equalization over the state so that the different cities and counties would share equitably in the state

The mayor of Houston uses the statement quoted as a text to demonstrate how economically Houston's government is carried on. It is a fact that under the present administration Houston seems to do more with the emoney of the taxpayers than most cities are able to accomplish. Notwithstanding an extensive program of public improvements, the city always has cash on hand and plenty of money for all public purposes.

It is especially to be hoped that the McNamara cases in Los Angeles will be tried on their merits and not clouded with technicalities. What the country wants to know is whether these men are guffty or not. If the accused and their counsel feel secure in genuine innocence, they will not seek to resist the normal course of

San Francisco's Degradation

AN FRANCISCO'S chief of police has transferred 70 police officers from the central district in which they had been trying to enforce the law to outlying districts where conditions are commonly quiet. "Every man," says a dispatch, "at the central station who has had anything to do with closing gambling houses and controling illegal cafes has been assigned to an outlying district." San Francisco will be a worse wide open town than it has been in the last dozen

From all reports it appears that the city is in the hands of the worst lot of "politicians for revenue only" with which it has ever been afflicted, possibly excepting the Schmitz regime. San Francisco is finding and will find that this policy does not pay. The city's development and growth are being seriously hampered by the general distegard of the need of honest government. Certain kinds of business and enterprise flourish, but a desirable element keeps away from a town that gets the reputation of being corrupt.

As a natural result of the "wide open" policy prevailing in San Francisco, the city is overrun with crooks, thugs, and safe breakers. One hundred men have been specially detailed from the police department to run down safe blowers, and merchants have been advised to keep nothing of value in their safes (!) and to keep lights burning in their places of business at all times after business hours.

Our Foreign Representatives

UR ambassadors abroad seem to be distinguishing themselves for tactless peculiarities. At the July 4 banquet of the American society in London ambassador Reid in proposing a toast to John Hays Hammond, special ambassador from the United States to the coronation, wished him a "speedy return to the United States." At the Independence day banquet of the American colony in the City of Mexico, at which the president of Mexico was the guest of honor, the Mexican military band started to play the hymn "America," thinking it was the American national air. President De la Barra immediately arose and was followed by everybody else at the banquet table except ambassador Wilson. according to a newspaper dispatch, and the American ambassador is reported to have kept his seat during the playing of the air after remarking to the president, "We are eating, what's the use?"

UNCLE WALTS Denatured Poem

A Y GARDEN is sickly, and littered with wrecks; the beans wilted quickly, and passed in their checks. The sight, it is saddish; the cabbage is dead; the onion and radish lie cold in their bed. The night zephyrs whistle o'er wreck and decay, and only the thistle is blooming today. My stremuous labors this garden has known, while indolent neighbors looked on with a groan. I said: "I'll be eating fine succulent sass, while those men are treating their stomachs to grass." They said: "You may boe, sir, and dig till you're sore, but we from the grocer will purchase our store." I slugged and lambasted the weeds with a hoe; my work was all wasted, and I'm full of woe. My garden is dreary as Sidon or Tyre, and oh, I am weary, while twanging my lyre! And this is the moral for others who fail to cultivate sorrel and onions and kale: A man needs some training his task to pursue, or he'll be complaining, disgusted and blue.

IN THE GARDEN

Copyright, 1911, by George Matthews Adams.

Walk Masons

Caroline, A Giri's Name

What It Means-Famous People That Bore the Name-The Name in History, Literature, Etc. (Copyright, 1910, by Henry W. Fischer.)

originally "Charae," which is the term for "Man" in old German. Caroline means "Man-woman" and was formed from the Latinized "Carolus," It's Carla in Italian. The Germans use the same appellation but sparingly substituting "k" for the ini-

Still more rare is the original Latin form "Carola," with the emphasis on the first syllable. The late queen of Saxony was so named.

The French substitute Charlotte for the English and German form, while with us and other nations Charlotte stands as a name by itself and must Caroline having seen the light in the forests of old Germany, it's only proper that the oak-leaf should be her emblem "bravery and humanity" her

There are 75 emperors and kings, among them many great warriors and statesmen, called Charles, but with one exception, the several queens named Caroline made a less distinguished The one royal Englishwoman bearing the name was Caroline Ma-thilda, younger sister of George III. and consort of Christian VII. of Denmark. She became involved with her premier, Struense, and though sacrificing everything for her love, failed to save his life. She died an exile.

Caroline Amelia was the uncrowned queen of George IV, and the mother of princess Charlotte. She was repudisted by her husband scarcely a year after the wedding and afterwards, having refused to renounce the crown, was subjected to a scandalous trial. Owing to ford Brougham's brilliant de-

AROLINE is the female of Charles, | fence and the pressure of public opinion, the bill found against her by the house of lords had to be withdrawn. At the old town of Brunswick, Germany, I saw her grave, bearing this tell-tale inscription: "Here lies Caroline of Brunswick, the martyred queen of England."

> Caroline Wilhelmina, queen of George II. was enamoured of politics, support-ed Walpole, intrigued against the prince of Wales and several times acted as regent. Jennie Deans has a famous interview with her in Sir Walter Scott's "The Heart of Midlothian."

> Queen Caroline, of Naples, was a sister of Marie Antoinette and ruled both the king and kingdom with a high hand, in company with the thirsty sir John Acton and lady Hamfiton the friend of lord Nelson.

> Caroline of Hesse was called "The Great Landgravine." She was the grandmother of a Prussian king and the czars Alexander II. and Nicholas of Russia, while her daughter Louise, grand duchess of Welmar, was friend and patron of Goethe. Frederick the Great set her a monument in-"By sex a woman, by her genius, a man."

> Lady Caroline Lamb lives in literature as the weman ready to commit any crime and suffer any martyrdom for the love of lord Byron. Finally her sentimentality and impetuosity caused Byron to weary and run away from Her novel, Glenarvon, tells the Carrie and "Karlyn" are popular pet names for girls named Caroline. Next in order: Cordelia, No. 44; Ann. No. 45: Beatrice, No. 46.

HIS LITTLE GIRL The Herald's Daily Short Story

(BY RAOUL HERBERT),

HE white haired lawyer looked

"And you are certain this statement

"I understand," said the lawyer,

"Absolutely," the man replied, "we have barely managed to keep the busi-ness going during the last two years." mother to me. Their house was the only home I have ever known. lowed her, who is now dead, and her daughter to remain absolutely igno-rant of the true state of affairs."

The man did not answer. "I notice an entry of 150 dollars paid to the deceased every month," the old lawyer continued. your salary entered?"

"It is not entered." The reply came slowly and hesitatingly. "I also see two or three entries of payments of $150 each having been made to the firm by a certain (J. L.) Who is this (J. L.)?"

The man did not raise his eyes from the carpeted floor. The old lawyer took off his golden spectacles and wiped them with his handkerchief. "You understand, Mr. Long," he said "the young lady's affairs have been turned over to me, and I must understand the situation thoroughly. must ask for certain explanations, and I am sure you will render me

John Long nodded. "Well! Just let us go through the nost important facts. John Dodson dled five years ago and his widow deelded to continue the business. Quite naturally she turned to you who had been in her late husband's confidence. You had been in John Dodson's employ for many years?"

"Ever since I was a small boy." "Yes, I know. You became in time almost as one of the family. You knew when Dodson died, you were the only man to manage it. and solid. Dodson had been in good and solid. Dodson had been in the habit of drawing a certain amount every month and there was no reason why his widow should not continue to of this book I find matters looking very satisfactory, but a little later, a couple of years, perhaps, everything begins to go back and this keeps on until very recently, when there again seems to be a rise. It is perfectly clear that business has been bad, but that the widow has nevertheless been able to draw her usual amount. But, during the last three years, I find no salary entered for you and I do not understand the various amounts paid in

"It was an old debt paid a little at The lawver looked up from the book and looked at Long searchingly.
"I see," he said. "And your salary account was that the same way?" John Long held out his hands. "Is it really necessary to discuss he asked. "In half an hour Miss Dobson will be here to demand a full explanation of her situation and for her sake I want you to be absolutely frank. Come now-tell me everything."

"But what is there for me to tell?" the young man exclaimed. "The books explain everything about the business going back. There is really no more to say except that I have done my best and that I am very sad at having no

The lawyer shook his head. "The girl will not think that explanation satisfactory, and in that I

For a while the young man sat staring at the carpet. Then he stood up and began to walk up and down the floor.

"A tale of nothing but had luck," he I have worked hard, but nisfortune has dogged my steps. wonder if you will understand me when I say that I am glad that she who is now dead was never told that business was poor, but always believed it to be as good as ever."

earnestly and searchingly into face of the man in front of him. "He took care of me when I was a poor boy and taught me everything absolutely correct?" he asked I know about business. I did my best to prove that I was worthy of his confidence. And his wife was like a real

> She was a little younger than I, lighthearted and kind, a little fond of teasing, perhaps, and I became just like a big brother to her. Some day when she had grown up and I was a rich man we were to be married, she said once for fun, and it was the hope of this which always forced me ahead and kept up my courage through the years that passed. I felt so sure I would get my reward some time. But things changed. Mary grew up and entered a new world in which I had no share. I was only her fath-er's employee, tied down to my work. She did not come to the office very often, and, when she came, she no longer called me John, but Mr. Long. saw the woman had forgotten the omise the little girl had given. Perhaps she thought I had forgotten too, but I had not. I wanted to become her father's partner or start in business for myself, and to reach this goal worked and saved. Then when some tended to remind the little girl of her

"When I was 25 I knew every detall of the business. Mr. Dodson was often sick and the responsibility rested on my shoulders alone, and he knew he could trust me.
"When his widow asked me to beber offer. The amount of money they used to draw must not grow smaller. My work was to be one of charity and gratitude and the reward was to come later. I felt so sure of my own abilitles that, if anyone had told me that have laughed at the idea. Everything looked promising. Though Mary had a host of admirers, she gave her heart found out that I had been too optimstic: a new competitor entered the marhe was taking away some of our cusfor life. My rival had unlimited money behind him and was able to cut our I fought hard all the time, but it was a losing fight from the start and a time came when our business ceased to pay any profit. "I never mentioned this to Mrs. Dodgive in. For five years I have struggled forward inch by inch with the result you see on the paper in front of you. Dodson's firm has lost none of its reputation; we have always paid promptly, but there were times when felt afraid that I would have to tell Mrs. Dodson. But now there is Mary."

He stopped and wrung his hands unable to say another word. "You must tell her that the firm is still solid," he stammered at last, "but for a little while she will have to manage on less. I am sure the crisis is now, we have many old customers who stick to us and we are getting a few new ones, but it is to be uphill work for a while yet." The old lawyer nodded.

"I thank you Long," he said. "I understand everything now. In a few moments Mary will be here. Will you eyes. please call again in half an hour?"

John Long stood in the office near the door and looked at the young girl who was sitting at the desk. As he entered, the old lawyer took off his glasses and began to notish plest girl that ever lived."

Universalists Making an Effort to Spread the Doctrines of Their Church

Non-Believers In Hell Are Planning a Campaign Among the Young People.

Frederic J. Haskin

THE organization of a campaign to extend the membership of the Universalist church will be the principal' subject of discussion at the 23rd annual convention of the National Universalist church which meets in Portland, Me., this week. The distinguished theological tenet which gives this desomination the name "Universalist" is the belief that all souls eventually will be saved, and that ultimately good will triumph over evil throughout the universe. One Universalist minister has said that his church believes "that what

An American Institution.

Although the peculiar doctrine of universalism has been held by a greater or less number of theologians throughout the history of the Christ-ian church, the Universalist church as denomination is an American institution. It now has about 1000 churches and nearly 100,000 members in the United States and Canada. The young people of the church, whose union in convention at Portland this week corresponds to the Christian Endeavor and the Epworth League societies of other denominations, has determined upon an aggresive campaign to increase the church membership, confidently believing, as they do, that there are vastly more Universalists in belief than may be found on the fellowship rosters of their

Universalism, according to its modern adherents, was taught by the in the popular mind the impression early fathers of the church in the that its chief doctrine is that there is First and Second centuries, notably | no hell, the church and its leaders inby Clement of Alexandria, Gregory of Nyssa, and Origen of Alexandria, also was proclaimed in the schools of Antioch and other eastern religious centers in the third century, and was ishment, held by that bishop Theodore, who led the schism which resulted in the organization of the Nestorian church. The doctrine in more modern times became associated with the name of Origen, and its adherents among German and French Protestants after the Reformation were frequently called Origenists. The first religious organization to take the name "Universalist" originated in the preaching of James Relly in London in 1750. There are still a few Universalist churches in Europe bearing that name, but the greater portion of European Universal ists are now united with the Unitarian organizations.

Starting of the Church. The Universalist church as an eccle-siastical institution dates from the arrival in Good Luck, N. J., in September, 1770, of the Rev. John Murray, of London. He was a Wesleyan of the Whitefield following, but had come under the influence of Relly and had accepted universalism while still clinging to the Calvanistic doctrines of fore-ordination and election. He predicted his belief in universal salvation upon a faith in universal election. He preached his doctrines in several towns in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. Finally he settled in Gloucester, Mass., in 1774. The orthodox Conrega-"I learned to know and love the ing Murray's meetings. These 15 sus- years the Calvinistic doctrine of uni- lines, and it was found that pended members organized the pendent Christian church in Gloucester," which became the parent organization of the ination. In 1793 Mr Murray went to Boston, which ever since has been the headquarters of Universalism, thereafter Hosea Ballou arose to priminence in the church and for half century was its leader. The Winchester Profession. At first the churches were congregational in government and recognized no central authority. However, annua conventions were head and the first step for a general organization was taken in 1803 at a convention held at Winchester, N. H. This convention adopted a statement of belief which ever since, under the title of the "Winchester Profession" has been the accepted statement of the essential doc trines of the church. The Winchester Profession is:

"Article I. We believe that the holy scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation of the charter of God and of the duty, interest and final destination of mankind. "Article 2 We believe that there is one God, whose nature is love, revealed in one Lord Jesus Christ by one Holy Spirit of Grace, who will finally restore the whole family of mankind to holiness and happiness. "Article 3. We believe that holiness and true happiness are inseparably connected, and that believers ought to be careful to maintain order and practice good works; for these things are good and profitable unto men, For many years the annual convenbusiness would go backwards I would tions continued to maintain their voluntary character, but at the centennial convention in 1870, a general system of church government modeled to none, and I felt more sure than on the federal constitution of the ever that some time she would be United States was adopted. The indi-"Business continued to be good for of the state organization, and subject while. Dodson's firm had a splendid to its authority. There are now 41 reputation and we always made out state and provincial conventions, each better than our competitors. But I of which meets annually, and each of which elects representatives to the general convention, which holds bienket, backed up by a number of large nial sessions, and which exercises genfirms, and one morning I realized that, eral authority over the entire church. Principles Added.

At the general convention in Beston in 1900 the Winchester Profession was supplemented by a briefer "statement of essential principles," belief in was made the condition of fellowship in It is: hood of God: 2. spiritual son; it was my fight and I would not authority and leadership of His Son Jesus Christ; 3. The trustworthiness of the Bible as containing a revelation from God; 4. The certainty of just mony of all souls with God." For many years there has been some agitation for the consolidation of the Universalist and the Unitarian churches. It is said that most Universalists are Unitarians in theology, and that

them again. His voice was strangely

"I have explained everything, Long," "Miss Dodson must decide he said. what is to be done now. The young girl stood up and looked as well as our own. straight into his eyes. He thought she soft when he began to talk.

looked unusually pale. She smiled, but he saw that there were tears in her "We must not take down the old sign, John," she said. I shall get a few thousands from the life insurance company. They are at your disposal, should be allowed if you will accept me as your partner, without protest. "J. L." I will think myself the hap-

most Unitarians are Universalists in theology, but not all. The chief difference between the main body of the members of the two churches is merely one of emphasis, but since there are Universalists who hold to the ortho-dox doctrine of the Trinity, and Unitarians who do not accept the dogmas of Origen, and since the form of church government is essentially different in the denominations, there is little prospect of an immediate union

Educational Efforts. Although small in number, the Universalist church maintains a great ed-ucational work. It has four colleges, namely: Tufts college at Medford, Mass.; Lombard college at Galesburg, III.; St. Lawrence university at Canton, N. Y., and Buchtel college at Akron, Ohio. It also maintains three theological schools and three academies. The Universalist church has, foreign missions in Japan and Cuba. In Japan, particularly, the mission has been very successful since the liberal tenets peal to the electic religious mind of the Japanese. The church also maintains domestic missions in the west south. While there are individual new janitor sweeps clean. churches in every church in the union and in every province in Canada, the great body of the church's strength is in New England and in New York.

Do Not Believe in Hell, While the Universalist church believes in the ultimate salvation of every human soul, and thereby has gained sist quite as much upon the belief that just retribution for sin is inevitable and unescapable. But it rejects as monstrous the doctrine of eternal punthat it is the purpose of God, through the grace revealed in Jesus Christ, to save every member of the human race from sin, the Universalist church declines to set forward as essential any opinion of the equality of God and Christ, or of the subordination of the Son to the Father. It is held that Universalism is not dependent upon the division between trinitarian and unitarian theology, nor upon any other the ological belief that separates or characterizes other denominational churches. Change in Bellef,

In the beginning, the Universalist church was largely tinctured with Calvanism, as both John Murray and Elhanan Winchester, who were the original leaders of the denomination, held ter a Culvinistic Baptist, In 1785, six led forth 100 of his excommunicated to El Paso. tion further made memorable by the versal election has practically disappeared and modern Unitarianism is in itself a separate school of theology based on the belief that what ought

Monday-Talking Machines GOVERNOR MILLS APPOINTS

SOME MILITIA OFFICERS Santa Fe, N. M., July 7, .. - Adjt. Con. A. S. Brookes announces the following appointments by governor Mills: John lieutenant to succeed J. E. McWenie Charles N. Robins, to be second lieutenant, vice John Koogler, resigned; Dr. C. E. Hauser, of Clovis, to be first lieutenant, vice first Heutenant Fred Clayton, resigned; while the resignation of second lieutenant Ross L. Malone was also accepted.

RURALES IN CLASH WITH MADERISTAS: SEVERAL KILLED.

Mexico City, Mex., July 8 .- Several revolutionists were wounded and a few killed in a clash between Gen. Figueroa's rurales and a body of men styling themselves "Maderistas," under Gen. Salgado, at Iguala, according to meager reports which reached

Arson Jones wuz legally separated from his wife t'day-also his farm. A

Years Ago To-This Date 1897

Rev. J. S. Harper went to Albuquerque this morning. Now that the flood has stopped running through second ward, residents who were drowned out, are looking for relocation The excess of June exports over that of May was $200,009. This makes a great showing, and is something to be justly proud of. If the aty administration can devise some means to stop the water from falling on El Paso, the band will play in the park tonight. Another week's rations have been given to the Mexican 400 at old Fort

Bliss through the efforts of Juarez and Chihuahua women who have gathered a subscription for them. The train from the west is six hours late because of washouts between

Lordsburg and Benson, At 1:30 today, yesterday's No. 20 was still at Lordsburg, and No. 19 was at Benson, The train from the east did not wait. Arrangements have been made for a stage and a freight life from Casas to that theological theory. Murray was a stage and a freight life from Casas a Calvinistic Methodist, and Winches- Grandes to Guerrero. The Corralities company has the matter in hand and years after Murray had organized his will push the new enterprise through. thurch in uloucester, Mr. Winchester This will bring a lot of Guerrero trade Baptist brethren of Philadelphia and oregon street, since the late heavy organized the "Society of Universal rain, is about as unnavigable for bi-Baptists," holding to the faith of the cycles as the Rio Grande is for rafts universal restoration of mankind to and catfish, It is in a dangerous conholiness and happiness. The Murray dition, and residents in that part of and Winchester schools fraternized in a convention of Universalist churches held at Philadelphia in 1794, a convenient of Ludges Kemp and Edwards with superintendent Martin; and city engineer tionalist church at Gloucester in 1774. fact that it was the first ecclesiastical Wimberly went, down to the east end The orthodox Congregationalist church hody in this country to declare the at Gloucester in 1779, suspended 15 owning of slaves to be inconsistent over the ground with a view to releasmembers who had persisted in attendment with the Christian religion. In later ing the waters. The engineer gave the under the S. P. tracks near the White Oaks junction was so placed, that by digging a ditch, 10 inches of water could be drawn off today. lieved that judge Edwards will recommend his corporation to put in a pipe line from the lake section to the south side, which will hereafter prevent any accumulation of water on the Myrtle

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS ARE SEIZING OPIUM

The El Pase custom officials are sure hard on the poor China boy who his favorite brand of "hop." iness shot to pieces because of the Mexican trouble, and the high water in the river, opium smuggling is fast be coming a lost art in and around El

Taking advantage of this fact, the agents of the treasury department in El Paso are going out in the byways of Arizona and rudely seizing the Chinese boys' oplum supplies. Harold S. Creighton of the El Paso office, recently made a raid at Phoenix and Kingman, getting several cans of the precious dream stuff

Nationality and Ladyhood

Editor El Paso Herald: I just read the letter in today's Herald, written by "A Southern Woman," and let me say, please, it is not a credit to our sex. I am simply a girl, born and reared in the South, but I was never taught that a respectable woman, no matter what nationality, was not deserving of

Perhaps when the lady visits in some foreign land, and finds that she is one of the many which constitute the "disturbing element," in that land, she will be glad to find a place to ride in their

"A Southern Girl."

El Paso, July 7. Editor El Paso Herald: After reading both the "Mexican Mother's" complaint and the "Southern Woman's" comment, the latter appears to be the more absurb of the two, and the former has a great deal to base her If the southern woman will take the time and trouble to make a few trips on the late cars of the term "Pay Day" she will see some of the most disgraceful sights and hear some of the most vile language that men can utter, and if anyone should have separate compartments it is this drunken and rowdy class of soldiers. that make our mothers and sisters hang their heads with shame, with their vile talk The southern woman will also find there are ladies in other nationalities

El Paso, July 7. Editor El Paso Herald: It would surely be a disgrace to this city if the letter of "A Southern Woman" in your issue of the 7th inst. should be allowed to pass unnoticed and

Being neither northerner, southerner, Mexican nor negro, I take it upon my-

El Paso, July 7. | self to voice a reply which, I feel sure, must be stirring in the hearts of all decent people who read "A Southern Woman's" letter, but which they might consider too blased to express.

It is not a pleasant duty-duty cannot always be pleasant-but it is a duty, nevertheless, that I, as an unbiased Anglo-Saxon El Pascan, feel called upon to undertake to protest against "A Southern Woman's" abominable slurs at a portion of our towns-folk who show themselves worthy of every respect. Any southern mother-any motherwould have read "A Mexican Mother's" dignified complaint with feelings of deep concern and sympathy; and would have felt that she, too, had suffered insult and, morally at least, would have supported "A Mexican Mother" through her trying experience and thanked God that she had had the courage to attempt publicly to save from future outrage not only her own daughters but the daughters of all mothers, Amer-

To adopt the style of studied insult with which "A Southern Woman" closes her letter is entirely beneath my purpose. I may, however, add just one suggestion that may give "A Southern Woman" pause for consideration,

It is that Mexican mothers occupied this corner of the great United States many centuries before southern women came here; and that they seem to have instilled lessons of courtesy and respect into both their sons and their daughters. I trust that if "A Southern Woman" reads these lines she will try to under-stand them. She must surely regret having written in the vein she adopted if she at all approximates to the many southern women I have been privileged to meet. The thought of my own mother and sisters is with me as I sign myself A Respecter of All Women,